

BARRETT MISSING AS WARRANT IS ISSUED

J. S. Formally Accuses Him of Theft of Mrs. Spreckels's Jewels in London.

EXTRADITION REQUESTED

British Ambassador Takes Up Matter With Consul at Los Angeles.

Special to THE SUN and NEW YORK HERALD.
LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 25.—Extradition of Capt. William N. Barrett from Los Angeles to London to answer a $15,000 jewel theft charge, was requested today by the British Government through Acting Consul Best. On information furnished by Sir Auckland Geddes, British Ambassador at Washington, D. C., Commissioner Long issued a warrant formally accusing Capt. Barrett of embezzling a necklace valued at $25,000 from Mrs. John D. Spreckels, Jr., of California.

In the meantime, Capt. Barrett is believed to have left Los Angeles without informing any one of his destination.
Attorney H. L. Gelsler, who was instrumental in obtaining Capt. Barrett's release from police surveillance, said tonight he had not seen nor heard from his client since Thursday afternoon. The attorney said Capt. Barrett made an engagement to meet him to-night at his office, but did not make his appearance, and that none of the dashing aviator's friends were able to tell of his whereabouts.

Old Captor Gets Warrant.

Singularly enough, the warrant granted by Commissioner Long found its way into the hands of Detective-Sergeant Cline, who held Capt. Barrett in virtual custody for thirty-six hours on suspicion of being wanted for the theft, but was compelled to liberate him for his lack of an official document on which to hold him.

When the United States Marshal's office received the warrant from Commissioner Long it was believed Cline would be the best qualified person in Los Angeles to serve it. Armed with the warrant Cline immediately began to search for Capt. Barrett, but met with no success in locating him, and to-night expressed the belief that the accused man had left Los Angeles.

According to Acting Consul Best Mrs.
Spreckels procured the warrant in London on Thursday. The complaint was cabled to the British Ambassador in Washington and communicated by him to Mr. Best, who immediately applied to Commissioner Long for the provisional arrest of Capt. Barrett so the latter might be held here until the arrival of papers from London.

Barrett Denied Story.

In her complaint, Mrs. Spreckels charges that she intrusted the valuable necklace to Capt. Barrett to take to a London jeweler to be cleaned and repaired. She believed he had complied with her wishes until she called for her necklace and learned it had not been left with the jeweler.

While under police surveillance Capt.
Barrett seemed undisturbed by the insultations of theft. With a smile and a wave of his hand he said his only connection with the disappearance of the necklace was to accompany Mrs. Spreckels to a shop in London, where she said the jeweler resided.

Although no criticism was made by Cline to-night, he expressed regret over the presumable escape of Capt. Barrett after having been under the eyes of officers of the law for a day and a half.
